

Issue 41 / September 2019

Dear Reader

Plant extracts from the highest quality, from the selection of the raw material to the registration, is our commitment. Therefore we are pleased today, to inform you about our latest regulatory news.

We successfully completed and were recently granted the registration of our Private Label Cough Tablet with the API combination of Thyme and Primula.

Furthermore our Lemon balm extract has been granted a Certificate of Suitability of Monographs of the European Pharmacopoeia (CEP). This simplifies the registration procedure for our customers.

ANKLAM EXTRAKT® COUGH TABLET

OUR CONCEPT - YOUR PRIVATE LABEL PRODUCT

Both Thyme herb and Primula root are well known as expectorants in cough associated with cold. Whereas Thyme directly influences the membrane of the respiratory tract and facilitates the removal of viscous mucus, the mode of action of Primula is indirect. The saponins of the Primula root are believed to irritate the gastric mucosa and thereby activate a reflex to stimulate secretolysis. In combination, Thyme herb and Primula root are highly effective. Efficacy of the combination is supported by the HMPC (Committee on Herbal Medicinal Products), describing only two combination monographs, among which Thyme and Primula.

Together with our partners Wiewelhove GmbH and DS Pharma GmbH, we developed a Cough Tablet according to the HMPC monograph containing 75 mg of Thyme herb extract and 37.5 mg of Primula root extract. Recently we have been granted the registration for the Cough Tablet in Austria and Germany and therefore can provide a ready-to-market private label product.

LEMON BALM EXTRACT
CEP GRANTED

Products with Lemon balm leave extract are traditionally used to alleviate minor symptoms of stress and facilitate sleep onset. Furthermore, Lemon balm is known for the symptomatic treatment of mild gastrointestinal problems. To make it easier for our customers to register their products, we successfully applied for a CEP and have recently been granted the certification.
