

Issue 61 / November 2021

Dear reader,

eldosamb®, an anthocyanin-enriched elderberry extract, revealed its excellent potential as ingredient for immune health products as it showed antiviral and immunomodulating properties in a preclinical research programme.

Ingredients that can support the immune system are currently on everyone's lips. In normal conditions, the immune system protects our organism extremely effectively against invaders especially considering the fact that we are surrounded by a variety of bacteria and viruses all day long. Nevertheless, it happens that we catch infections like a common cold or flu. The typical symptoms are e.g. headaches, nasal congestion and discharge, cough and fever. In order to help our body to fight the pathogens from the very first step to prevent infections, to reduce symptoms during an infection and to shorten the duration of illness, alternative treatments to standard prescription drugs are in demand.

STUDY RESULTS IN A NUTSHELL

- eldosamb® exerts substantial antiviral bioactivity against the MVA Virus, which was used as surrogate for other enveloped viruses (e.g. Influenza virus)
- eldosamb® shows immunomodulatory effects and counteracts pro-inflammatory reaction during acute infections
